“We are thrilled to be part of Newport Beach Restaurant Week for the first time in 2015,” said Chef Rick Bayless. “We look forward to both locals and visitors experiencing RED O, and to share our special Restaurant Week menus with our loyal regulars.”

In addition to expanding the event to two full weeks, Dine Newport Beach Restaurant Week is offering added menu price points. Lunch menus are $10, $15, $20 and $25, and dinner menus for $20, $30, $40 and $50, and new Restaurant Week menus will be added daily on the Dine Newport Beach website.

“Newport Beach Restaurant Week will showcase a variety of unique dining experiences and cuisines ranging from American favorites to authentic ethnic fare and formal fine dining to hip and sandy-foot-casual,” says Polly Peak, Director of Dine Newport Beach. “Restaurants in various neighborhoods throughout the city – from Balboa Island to Corona del Mar to Balboa Village and Fashion Island – will entice both casual diners and foodies alike to enjoy meals from talented chefs at a great value.”

About Newport Beach Restaurant Week

Newport Beach Restaurant Week is a two-week dining event from January 19 through February 1, 2015, that showcases Newport Beach as a premier dining destination. Diners will experience the diversity and quality of culinary experiences the seaside community has to offer. Presented by Dine Newport Beach, the cooperative marketing program for the Newport Beach Restaurant Association, Restaurant Week aims to drive business and new customers to neighborhood restaurants in Newport Beach.
